Book Reviews of New Books in the Public Library,
by Lily M. E. Borresen, Librarian.

EVER SINCE the terms of the Treaty of Versailles were made public nearly two years ago, the newspapers and magazines have been full of discussion concerning it. Americans declared in no uncertain terms that they would have no more to do with European affairs, and yet within the past week President Harding and Secretary Hughes have been obliged to appoint unofficial members of the reparations commission and supreme council. Many skip the telegraphic news articles that report the different phases of the situation, but others read them with avidity realizing that America cannot be prosperous until Europe gets on her feet again. Most of these latter feel that their knowledge of what happened at the peace conference is very scanty. A group of books will be interested in the public library.

An Introduction to the Peace Treaties by A. P. Scott, assistant professor of history in the University of Chicago, gives a detailed summary of the treaty with Germany and the other central powers, including explanatory comments on most of its clauses. The author does not attack or defend the treaty. He attempts to state what the treaty says and to indicate the reasons which appear to have guided the conference in its decisions. In the numerous instances where great difference of opinion exists, he has tried to summarize fairly the arguments on both sides. The book is not based on any inside knowledge of what went on at Paris, or on any unpublished documentary material. Because it is a bird's eye view of the whole subject, it is a good introductory book to read to clarify one's ideas, and one that it is helpful to turn to for reference as one reads others that deal with certain phases in a more detailed way.

Some Problems of the Peace Conference by C. H. Haskins and R. H. Lord. This is one of the most illuminating accounts yet published of the way the treaty was drafted and of the whys and wherefores of many of its provisions. Professor Haskins was a member of the committee of three which drafted the treaty clauses on Alsace-Lorraine and the Saar Valley and Professor Lord served at Paris as American adviser on Poland, and as head of the American section of the allied mission to that country. Both authors were therefore associated with the peace conference in capacities which qualify them to write with intimate knowledge of its procedure and of the arguments and objects which determined its decisions. The book deals almost exclusively with the territorial questions; but in so doing gives a much needed picture of the working methods of the conference, a picture which is somewhat at variance with that given in Keynes' "Economic Consequences of the Peace." It tends to correct a common misapprehension that the American advisers served mainly to adorn the entourage of their chief. It elicits the existence of records which will enable a future fairer complete history of even the confidential proceedings at Paris to be written. Last but not least it is written in a style that is both scholarly and popular. A reader of average intelligence will not find a dry page in it, and yet it will satisfy within its scope the more exacting student.

Making of the Reparation and Economic Sections of the Treaty by Bernard M. Baruch. The author, who served as American member of the economic drafting commission, the reparations commission and the supreme economic council, explains the genesis and importance of some of the most controversial clauses of the treaty, and those which directly and indirectly particularly concern our country. In the early chapters where he describes the struggle behind the scenes to make the treaty conform within at least blushing limits with the pre-Armistice covenants with Germany we get original material of interest and importance. In these chapters Mr. Baruch gives us an authoritative history of the reparations and economic clauses of the treaty, much as Professors Haskins and Lord have given us the history of the political treaty clauses dealing exclusively with Europe. He has done so with such frankness as to elicit a rebuke from certain foreign reviewers for having violated some conventional reticences.

The Peace Negotiations: A Personal Narrative by Robert Lansing. This is the book most called for at present on the Versailles treaty. To the writer of these notes the book is disappointing, especially when it is read in close connection with the other books here reviewed. But opinions differ as quotations from two different reviews will show. One reviewer says: "Stop by step, through all the affairs of the treaty and the covenant, Mr. Lansing traces the growth of the difference between him and the president showing carefully just why and how he disagreed. An informative inside view of events at Paris and also a calm, detached explanation of a personal position." Another reviewer says: "If Mr.

Lansing's volume does not reveal him as a large man, neither does it make him out a great secretary. Great secretaries play the same or resign. Whether he or the president was right in specific matters is a question that time alone can decide. How little he understands the real difficulties of the negotiations or the amount of the preliminary work required is seen in his native belief that if only his ideas of procedure had been accepted, adequate preliminary treaties could have been signed within a few weeks, covering all territorial questions, as well as the fundamental problem of reparations, which has only just now been settled."

So much for our new books on the peace treaty. Many others on totally different subjects have been added. A short annotated list follows:

Margot Asquith, an Autobiography. This book by the wife of a noted English statesman, who preceded Lloyd George as prime minister of England, has aroused very conflicting opinions. To some it seems a mere collection of bits of scandal, in judicious and unimportant. Others find in the disjointed mass of comments and events a reflection of fascinating bits of the social and intellectual life of her time. Some of her character sketches of noted men are very witty. Thus she says of the Duke of Devonshire: "He had the figure and appearance of an artisan with the brevity of a peasant, the courtesy of a king and the noisy sense of humor of a fakstaff." Whatever be one's final judgment of the book one cannot help finding it very amusing.

John Burroughs, Boy and Man by Clara Barrus. This was originally intended as a boy's life of Burroughs and is full of the human, humorous life of a country boy, with the story of the work and play of the man written in a way to interest readers of any age.

New Industrial Unrest by Ray Stannard Baker. The reasons are studied largely from the point of view of the information gained by the author's careful investigation into the Garry steel strike. The remedial measures considered are Americanization, political action, welfare work, the shop council or shop committee system, and the co-operative movement. The Survey magazine believes that on the whole there is perhaps no other book which discusses this subject so well and so fruitfully.

The Americanization of Edward Bok, by Edward William Bok. The fascination of success hangs about his account of how the Dutch immigrant boy became editor of the Los Angeles Home Journal, of the work he did and of the people he knew—Roosevelt, Kipling, Holmes, Gladstone and many others. One reviewer says: "I began to read Bok's book in my study; but the middle of the second chapter found me reading aloud to the family in the living room, and the next day I was reading the chapter on a 'Boston Pilgrimage' to a chap in overalls who sat next to me in the street car."

Introduction to Psychoanalysis, by Sigmund Freud. "These twenty-eight lectures to laymen are elementary and almost conversational. Freud sets forth with a frankness almost startling the difficulties and limitations of psychoanalysis, and also describes its main methods and results as only a master and originator of a new school of thought can do," says Dr. G. Stanley Hall in his preface.

Outline of History, Being a Plain History of Life and Mankind, by H. G. Wells. This is another book that has caused quite a sensation and many conflicting opinions. One reviewer says that it is undoubtedly one of the most remarkable books of our generation. Another criticizes the author for being content to clip for the events of 1919 from such ambitious and partisan sources as Koppas and Jill, reaching the conclusion that greater calm in treating his own time would have strengthened our confidence in Mr. Wells' power to deal with more remote periods of history. Beginning with the position of the earth in space the two volumes cover geologic time and human history down to the present and in true Wellesian fashion takes a look into the future. Experts have questioned details here and there but the authenticity of the whole seems to withstand the test of critical opinion. It is written in simple style within the comprehension of a high school pupil, but nevertheless contains brilliant dissertations that will hold the interest of the more mature reader and bristles with quotable passages such as: "Napoleon might have been the maker of a new world but preferred to be son-in-law of the old."

TO DESTROY FLIES USE RAWLEIGH'S Insect Powder

Rawleigh's Insect Powder is not only useful for destroying flies but also ants, cockroaches and many other filthy, dangerous and bothersome household and garden pests.

Rawleigh's are among the world's largest producers of Insect Powder made from Pyrethrum Flowers.

For years Rawleigh's have been one of the leading producers of Insect Powder. So vast has this business become that in 1920 The W. T. Rawleigh Company opened a Branch House at Gravena on the Dalmatian Coast near the center of the district where the finest Pyrethrum Flowers grown in the world are produced. Here the Company buys from the producers the finest qualities of Pyrethrum Flowers, which are baled and shipped from Dalmatia direct to Rawleigh's Freeport, Memphis, and Winnipeg factories, where they are ground into a fine, uniform powder, securely packaged in air-tight cans and blowers and shipped to Rawleigh Retailers.

Instituted last fall by the faculty and students together. The percentage of failure of the entire student body was again reduced this time from eight and one tenth per cent to six and seven tenths per cent. It is a safe guess that few high schools in the northwest have as low a percentage of failure.

The boys of the school were delighted to receive the following letter from Supt. C. S. Meek of Madison, Supt.-elect of Toledo, Ohio: My Dear Mr. Collings: Thank you very much for your letter of May 7th. I enjoyed meeting your boys. They are a fine lot of fellows. HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The honor roll posted at the high school last Friday morning once again broke all records. It contained one hundred and eighty-eight names, thirty-one more than the record-breaker of last month. There are at least two hundred other students who have eighty-five in two or three subjects or an average of eighty-five in four but to have his name on the honor roll the student must have eighty-five or over in each of four.

This roll comprising as it does seventy per cent of the student body is only continued evidence of the success of the campaign against failure.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The honor roll posted at the high school last Friday morning once again broke all records. It contained one hundred and eighty-eight names, thirty-one more than the record-breaker of last month. There are at least two hundred other students who have eighty-five in two or three subjects or an average of eighty-five in four but to have his name on the honor roll the student must have eighty-five or over in each of four.

This roll comprising as it does seventy per cent of the student body is only continued evidence of the success of the campaign against failure.

The boys of the school were delighted to receive the following letter from Supt. C. S. Meek of Madison, Supt.-elect of Toledo, Ohio: My Dear Mr. Collings: Thank you very much for your letter of May 7th. I enjoyed meeting your boys. They are a fine lot of fellows. TARIFF BILL MAY BE DECIDED UPON DURING THE WEEK

Agreement of the Conference is Expected During the Next Few Days

WASHINGTON, D. C.—House and senate conferees made little progress
today in efforts to adjust differences in the emergency tariff bill. A two-hour session did not result in an agreement on any of the differences.

The chief opposition offered by the house conferees was to the senate provision confining war time control importations of dyestuffs, Senator Penrose, republican, Pennsylvania, chairman of the conference, stated.
He said the house members were not satisfied with the anti-dumping section as re-written by the senate.

Mr. Penrose expressed the opinion that an agreement would be reached early next week. Another attempt to adjust the differences will be made early next week. Another attempt to adjust the differences will be made Tuesday.

LA FOLLETTE STIRS UP OPPOSITION TO THE ADMINISTRATION

into the service. Today there is not really any system of employment which can be called an employment system
of the United States.

Today there is the greatest inequality of payment for the same service. We are told of one man who got $1,100, another $1,800, another one $2,000 and one over $3,000 for performing the same service. Lump sum appropriations in the hands of men have resulted in scandalous favoritism, and not only that, but in entrenching on the employee in this city and throughout the country.

That is the trouble with the administration of these civil service lists. It has been so administered as to put countless numbers of employees into blind-alley jobs, influential, although a small percentage of them are not by the belief that by laborious service they can secure the promotion they deserve. But they can not.

There is nothing like a regular system of promotion. Man after man and woman after woman work like slaves, and yet they are denied the opportunity of the Government that appeals to them that find that somebody at the head of some bureau puts another into the place which they have earned.

As a remedy for these conditions,
Mr. Cooper strongly urged reclassification of all government employees in order that a person who is appointed to the position of clerk, for example, will know what his duties are.

Indignities on the floor
The efforts of the former members of the Wisconsin delegation who returned to Congress after being retired for two years are notably the same in respect. They are devoting their chief attention to the consideration of measures on the floor.

Representative William J. Stafford, of Milwaukee, as during his previous service in Congress, if figuring promi-nently in parliamentary debates on the floor. Several times he has occupied the chair while the House was considering measures in the committee of the whole.

Representative John M. Nelson, of Madison, was ranking member of the House judiciary committee when he was defeated, and upon his return has been forced to accept only minor committee appointments. In preference to spending his time in this work, he has become a close observer of the details of the work of the House. He is present most of the time as many members are not.

Mr. Cooper also figures prominently in the consideration of measures on the floor where the proceedings are sometimes dull, but demand close attention to guard against legislative errors whose consequences are frequently bad.

Support Budget Bill
The entire Wisconsin delegation supported the national budget bill which was passed by a vote of 344 to 2. The roll call was as follows:
For: Cooper, Voight, J. M. Nelson,
Kleczka, Stafford, Beck, Classon, Frear,
A. P. Nelson.

Against: None.
Not voting: Browne, Lampert.

The Wisconsin delegation with the exception of David G. Classon, of Ocon-to, supported the amendment to the army appropriation bill providing for the reduction of enlisted personnel to 150,000. The army appropriation bill was passed without roll call, but a division showed 241 for and 22 against the bill.

On the Hull amendment, making it mandatory for the Secretary of War to grant applications for discharge from the army which would reduce the personnel to 150,000, the vote was 181 to 123 with 77 not voting. Speaking in favor of the amendment, Representative
Cooper said:

We have appropriated only a sufficient amount of money to pay for the support of an army of 150,000 men.
We shall by the amendment offered by the gentleman from Iowa, be forced by the gentleman from Iowa, to bring the army down to that number. And in my judgment, this time for the Republicans on this floor to show by their vote whether they mean to carry out the wishes of the taxpayers of the United States and return platinum coinage.

Between 1825 and 1845 Russia used platinum coinage.

SPLENDID LIFE IS ROUNDED OUT AT NINE-TWO YEARS

In the death of Mrs. Melissa Campbell we are reminded of the youthfulness of our country. It is remarkable to think that we have had the privilege of knowing in life those who have lived through the greater part of the history of the middle west.

Missouri was the only state west of the Mississippi when Mrs. Campbell was born and some states east of the Mississippi were not yet organized.
Fancy might range widely over the marvellous development of the American republic with in the span of this single life. But length of days is not the supreme interest in any life. "A man's life consisteth not in the things that he possesseth."

The notable thing about Mrs.
Campbell's life was her beautiful character and her sustained interest in every good thing doing to the very day of her death. Her ears alone failed her so that she could with difficulty converse with strangers in the later years yet in every other respect she had the interest in life that is characteristic of one but half of her generation.

Though beyond the allotted span of human life when the auto came into common use probably few people enjoyed touring over Wisconsin's many beautiful roads more than she did.
She would ride for hours without suggestion of weariness and would be the life of the party all the while. Indeed she enjoyed her last ride but the afternoon before her death. Her cheerfulness was but the expression of an optimistic view of life and her constant interest in every good thing, whether in public life or in private affairs.

She had a fine gift of humor and was always ready with words of repartee whenever called upon any subject.

She never seemed to sense that she was growing old, it was simply life in fullness of personality and its manifestation to the very last. That joy in living was the natural expression of her religious faith. Firm in her convictions she was true to her ideals and made the daily life the expression of her confidence in God.

Mrs. Campbell was the mother of B. S. Steadwell, with whom she had resided for many years. She had endeared herself to her friends for her lovable character, which radiated sweetness. She passed away peacefully with but an hour's warning.

due to a reasonable number the Army
of the United States."

Vote on Amendment
The vote of the Wisconsin delegation on the Hull amendment was as follows:
For: Cooper, Voight, J. M. Nelson,
Kleczka, Stafford, Lampert, Beck,
Frear, A. P. Nelson.
Against: Classon.

Not voting: Browne.
The system amendment providing that the sum of $25,000,000 determining the number of enlisted men, be reduced to $7,250,550, was adopted 181 to 123 with 77 not voting. The roll call on the Wisconsin delegation was as follows:
For: Cooper, J. M. Nelson, A. P. Nelson,
Stafford, Beck, Lampert, Voight, Frear and Kleczka.
Against: Classon.

The army appropriation bill has now gone to the Senate where the military affairs committee, of which Senator Frear is a member, will consider the measure.

Support Triffin Bill
Both Senators La Follette and Len-root supported the emergency tariff bill which passed the Senate by a vote of 165 to 28 with 3 not voting. That measure now goes into conference.

Representative Classon, as a member of the House judiciary committee, is in the storm center of the fight
going on about Representative Volstead's supplement to the National Prohibition enforcement law. The new Volstead bill provides that beer and light wines shall not be prescribed as medicine as decreed legitimate by the decision of former Attorney General Palmer.

The committee has begun hearings with representatives of the Anti-Saloon League and the W. C. T. U. strongly favoring it and New York physicians opposing it. The contention of the physicians is that the Congress has no right to regulate what a physician shall prescribe.

No Increase Expected
Representative Nelson, of Madison,
following the receipt of an inquiry
from the State legislature, said the vote to Wisconsin that the House probably would not take any steps to increase its members in the reappointment of the basis of the 122 census. His measure confirmed the report to the La Crosse Tribune and Leader-Press.

Small hope for action in this session of Congress on proposed appropriations to build and improve more than 300 different public buildings throughout the country was given to members

Public Debate

SHALL THE PEOPLE RULE?

Editor: Tribune and Leader-Press:
An article under the Public Debate column in the above question appeared in your Friday evening's paper, and there is no doubt but what the great majority of real American citizens will agree with the statements set forth therein, whether or not they may have voted in favor of this daylight Sabotage proposition which was submitted to the people by referendum, and affirmatively carried.

Members of the Wisconsin State Legislature, however, we will all remember that last fall a referendum on the question as to whether or not the people of the State of Wisconsin wanted the Mulberger Bill to become a law
as governing Prohibition in this state.
Our Legislature, after considerable wrangling on this Bill finally decided to refer same to the people of the State, and the result was that the proposed Amendment to the State and Constitution was ratified by the voters by an overwhelming majority of something like 2 to 1. However, it appears since that these paid referees
of this so-called State Statute League
were not satisfied with the provisions of the Mulberger law as same undoubtedly were not strict enough to suit their despotic dispositions, and consequently they have now succeeded in including the Legislature to pass the Matheson Prohibition law which we note from recent papers is entirely in accord with the wishes of this Reform League, thus having the Mulberger law
of this so-called State Statute League
it might be well for those interested in having the Matheson law passed to propose to have reformers there who denounce the Matheson law, and make it unlawful under heavy penalty, and now seems to be in such great demand.
There has been some question in the Public mind as to what is really considered as the true American flower,
but there seems to be no question as to what is now considered the most popular and the one that is really considered as the true American flower.
In conclusion I will say that as long as the foundation of our American situation was based on Democracy, let's wake up and insist that this principle be adhered to.

THE OTHER SIDE
La Crosse, Wis. May 14, 1921
To the Editor of the Tribune:
Relative to the daylight saving matter it appears that the Council are not disposed to act promptly in putting into effect the desire of the majority at the recent election. While there were between 2,000 and 2,000 voters indifferent about the question it still carried the majority of 361 or 11
words for and 10 words against it, but as long as the majority voted for it, that should be binding upon the aldermen and the matter should now be given a fair trial, and if it does not prove satisfactory the test will be the means of settling the public further as to its practical use.

Many have misgivings about having two standards of time—one for the city and another for the country. The country not wanting it, but a test of it will soon determine whether the people really continue to favor it or it would appear as a proper thing for the 11 aldermen whose wards want it to vote for it in the Council and have real representative government.
Mayor Bentley had put 222 majority and of course that elected him Mayor,
no one disputes that.

LAW COLLEGES ARE CRITICIZED

MINEAPOLIS, Minn.—Present
methods employed by faculties of law colleges of American universities were criticized by William Reynolds Vance, professor of law, Yale university, in addressing the closing educational conference at the University of Minnesota today, held in connection with the inauguration of Lotus D. Coffman also president of the Gopher institution.

Prof. Vance urged that the science of jurisprudence be taught more extensively to change conditions. He charged that inefficient systems are the outgrowth of low salaries paid to law instructors. He added, however, that any fault has been heightened in that research work has never been followed in teaching law students. Too much detail always has been given in technical study, professor Vance asserted, rather than in science and history.

Trees Can Start a Forest Fire
It has been proven by observation that it is quite possible for a forest fire to be started by the friction of two branches rubbing together in the wind. The heat thus generated is capable of causing the bark to ignite. This is particularly true of trees which have a very hard bark.

Permit crabs inhabit the vacant shells of mollusks.

Members of Stock Company
Cast Entertain Saturday Afternoon Theater-Goers.
The stage party given by Eloda Sitzer, "The Little Red-Head" with the Beach-Jones Stock company, immediately after the matinee performance on Saturday afternoon, was a great success.

With the exception of a few, the entire audience present at the afternoon performance of the "Brat," filled up the steps to the stage to be cordially received by Miss Sitzer, who has won for herself the warm admiration of many theater-going folk in La Crosse.

The guests of the little party were introduced to each member of the company, who busied themselves in serving punch to the large gathering.
Miss Sitzer was literally showered with compliments as the guests filed in all of which were received with her smile and frankness which characterizes her work on the stage and which is winning for her a rare popularity among patrons of the theater.

Remember, young eyes do not necessarily mean strong eyes.
Your child's vision is constantly changing and striving to adjust itself to his body growth,
and the eyesight is frequently overtaxed at this period.

You cannot afford to feed and clothe and nurture the child's body and mind and leave his eyes take care of themselves.

An examination will quickly determine if the little fellow's vision needs reinforcement.
Bring the child to me for an examination.

COMPARISON

UNCLE SAM'S DOLLAR IS BACK TO ALMOST NORMAL STRENGTH AGAIN.
Did you ever go to a well for water with a bucket that had big holes in it? Wasn't it exasperating to start off for the house or the barn with a full pail and find that half of the water was lost before you got back with it? Well, that's the way it has been with dollars for the past few years. They've had big holes in them. When you took them to the store to spend them, they lost half of their values. For several years it has seemed as though it took two or three times as many dollars to buy things as it did before the war.

DEMONSTRATION

But Uncle Sam's Dollars have been undergoing health building treatment for many months. The Dollar is growing solid and strong again. We can't say that it is as good as dollars were before the war; but it is a vastly better dollar than it was a year ago. What a grand and glorious feeling it is to really get your money's worth again. And now and here, that is exactly what you do.

These two pages of comparisons tell much of the story. They show you at a glance how much more your dollar is worth than it was a year ago; but there's much more good news to see and to hear about when you come to our store.

SENIORS PRESENT THE RURAL COMEDY SECOND MRS. FITZ

High Musical Organizations Give Concert on Court House Lawn
to Finance the "Spartan"

SPARTA, Wis.—Special.—A capacity house greeted the seniors at the Armory, Tuesday evening and enjoyed the class play. This annual event is looked forward to with a great amount of pleasure, not only by the student body, but by parents and friends. The play was "The Second Mrs. Fitz," a rural comedy. The work of putting on the play, was under the personal direction of Miss Grace M. Kelsey, dramatic coach of Menominee. The pupils taking part in the play were: Ray Grant, Marjorie Hubbard, Vernon Jahn, Lillian North, Tannie Jacobs, Maudie Stollieck Joseph, Morris, Bessie Young, Elizabeth Curran, Kenneth Barney, Walter Jessen, and John Sullivan. As a company and individually, they did themselves proud, and reflected much credit upon their instructor. Special features between acts were selections by High School Orchestra, vocal solo by Miss Frances Persons, "Some Little Bird is Calling You," and a couple of cornet solos by Prof. Doxator of Tomah, instructor of the Sparta High School band.

A class of fifty-five will be graduated from the High School on June 3, Tuesday evening May 24, at eight o'clock, the high school musical organizations will give a concert on the Court House Lawn. The Girl's Glee Club, Orchestra, and Band will take part in the program. A free will offering will be taken, to go toward the expenses of editing the "Spartan," the school's annual. Every one is invited to attend and help this worthy cause along. The full program will be announced later.

The weekly meeting of the Kiwanis club was held at the Sidney at noon on Wednesday. There was no special speaker this time, each member had the privilege of discussing any subject which interested him. Mr. Z. S. Bier gave five booster prizes in the form of tickets on the drawing of the Ford Coupe to be given away by the Country Club. Ois George gave as added prizes a box of Congress playing cards, a framed motto, a box of Whitman's chocolates and a box of Gentlemen's Club Stationery.

Dean H. Russell of the College of Agriculture, was to have been the guest of the club, at dinner, and then to have delivered a public address in the Court House Lawn in the evening, but owing to important matters requiring his attention in Madison, he was forced to cancel his engagement.

A delightful entertainment was given by the children of the State Public school for dependent children, on the campus Friday afternoon. Miss Edith Johnson, the teacher of music at the school, directed the children. The program consisted of songs and dances by the prettily dressed little folks; some being dressed as fairies, brownies and others representing flowers. The May Queen was Miss Katherine Prince, daughter of the superintendent of the Institution. The May Pole Dance was especially pretty and pleasing. A large number of

Roller Bearings Are Much Easier

The advantage of roller bearings over plain ones has been demonstrated in some comparative tests at auto mobile trucks. The rollers are said to effect a saving of from fifty to seventy-five per cent. Another advantage was noticed on the condition of the batteries after a prolonged run. The roller bearings was in much better condition. Those of the car with the old fashioned bearings were perceptibly run down by the drain of starting and stopping.

Increase of Two Thousand Acres Over Last Year Reported by Board

MADISON, Wis.—Wisconsin is now the greatest hemp producing state in the union, having about 6,500 acres, an increase of 2,000 over last year, according to reports of the College of Agriculture.

This great increase is directly due to the world war, which threw the hemp business of Russia into chaos, the college authorities say. A shortage of the fibre in Great Britain and manufacturing centers on the continent resulted.

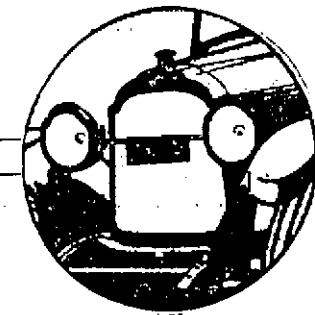

Wisconsin was said to have been organized to fill the foreign demand, and in the past year or two has sent hundreds of tons of long fibre and tow to Great Britain.

Specifications for the American navy were revised also, so that Wisconsin hemp was put on the same basis as the Kentucky fibre, which previously had been standard.

At present the market for long fibre hemp is very active, for there is a world shortage of competing fibres. The average yield in Wisconsin, according to the college, is about 1,100 pounds of fibre to the acre.

MIDSUMMER'S EVE OPERA IS PUT ON BY THE SCHOOLS

Plans are Being Laid for Memorial Day Program to be Given by American Legion

RUSHFORD, Minn.—(Special)—The opera, "Midsummer's Eve," put on by grades of the Rushford schools, under the able direction of Miss Rosa Kuntson, instructor in music, proved all and more than was anticipated. The Walking Dolls, part of the evening's program, also delighted young and old.

The Junior reception, given on the evening of May 7th, was the big social event of the school year and greatly enjoyed by all. The affair was held at the public school building.

Memorial day will be fittingly observed in Rushford; the program being in charge of the Chas. H. Murphy Post, American Legion, of this city. Mr. W. E. Dunley has been secured to deliver the address of the day and special music is in preparation. Also, dinner will be served to ex-service men of the World War; the Women's Welfare League aiding in every possible way. The League will also provide a rest-room for that day; though at this writing the place has not yet been decided.

A short time ago, Miss Clara Grapentine became the bride of Hubert Olundson; both the young people being residents of Hart. The marriage was solemnized at Hart, by Rev. Paul E. Koehnke, pastor of the Hart German Lutheran church. The young people were attended by Miss Helen Gahaz and Mr. Alva Gahaz.

Over fifty old neighbors and other friends of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Nation residents of the vicinity northwest of Rushford, were entertained at their home in honor of Mrs. Nation's birthday anniversary. A bountiful dinner was served and the afternoon spent in games, ball-playing included. A six o'clock supper was also served to all before they departed for their homes. Numerous beautiful gifts were received by Mrs. Nation.

The twentieth anniversary of the organization of the Royal Neighbor lodge, of Rushford, was fittingly observed a short time ago, when all the members, numbering sixty, each member bringing one invited guest, met at Woodman Hall. The seating of the charter members was one of the very pretty ceremonies. Little Miss Madeline Holte, carrying a lighted candle, was dressed to represent the Goddess of Liberty and leading the procession, was followed by Pauline Hilsore and Dale Shireen who carried baskets filled with red and white carnations; bouquets of which were presented to the charter members as they were seated. The charter members are twelve, being Mrs. Chas. Wilmarth, Mr. and Mrs. John Pederson, Mrs. Marie Knudsen, Mrs. John Culbuck, Mrs. Bessie Hallman, Mrs. H. Hundert, Mrs. L. Riecke, Mrs. W. W. Webster and the Misses Sarah Tufsen, Ella Arnold and Essie Lampman.

A number of Rushford young people are taking an auto trip in the western and northern part of this state and before their return, expect to visit Fargo, N. D. Those making up the party are Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose Ezen, the Misses Florence Ezen and Ruth Tolleson and Eddie Colbensen.

The Mrs. Katherine Akre home, also that of Olaf Johnson and Mandus Johnson, have had as recent guests Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Austad and family, who came over from Nodine by car, for a short visit.

Mrs. Moore and daughter, Miss

Alice, are in Redwood Falls, Minn., as the guests for a time of the daughter and sister of the two, Mrs. Forbes and family.

While Mrs. Henry Hendrickson, of Billings, Montana, was in this city recently, she was the guest of honor at several gatherings of her former neighbors. Among those entertaining were Mesdames B. N. Vigard, T. C. Kroekow, S. Jaastad, Geo. Julrud and Miss Laura Jaastad.

W. F. Drake, a delegate from Rushford to the state meeting of Modern Woodmen which recently met up at Virginia, Minn., has returned to his home.

The Brad Cloutier home has recently entertained three young gentlemen from Fountain, relatives of the family. They were Messrs. Artie, Clayton and Henry Bacon.

VETERANS TO RAISE FUNDS TO DECORATE GRAVES IN FRANCE

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—"More than 61,000 American soldiers who died during the world war still sleep on foreign soil. Shall the graves of our fallen be forgotten on this, the third Memorial day since the Armistice?" reads a bulletin issued by national headquarters of the American Legion.

A report to the legion from Quartermaster General of the Army Rogers shows that there are 61,420 American graves in seven foreign countries. In France 59,937 men of the A. E. F. still are buried, in England there are 517, in Belgium 751, in Russia 97, in Italy 26, in Germany 43 and in Luxembourg 8.

The legion's records show that the organization decorated 75,000 graves overseas last year with a fund of 1,000,000 francs; raised in America and France.

The bulletin, which the legion today forwarded to each of its 11,000 posts, emphasizes the individual obligation of the legionnaires and their prompt action.

Hunting From Automobiles

Hunting gazelles is now successfully done in automobiles, whereas heretofore it was indifferently done on horseback. The gazelles are so swift that they soon tire out a horse and the chase is quickly ended and it is only occasionally that a gazelle is caught. London papers tell of a party of four persons in four cars which recently went out after these animals and after long and exciting chases over the rough ground three gazelles were killed and one taken alive.

ABANDON AWARDS ON GRADE SIRE FAIR MOVEMENT

Van Auker Takes Action to Unite Wisconsin Fairs in Improving Livestock Shows

Secretary C. S. Van Auker of the La Crosse Interstate Fair association, as president of the Association of Wisconsin fairs, has launched a movement to obtain the intercession of all fairs in the state of a plan to discontinue awarding of prizes to grade sires in livestock shows of the state, and to effect other changes to improve this department in the various fairs.

Following a meeting of the Wisconsin Livestock Breeders' association at Madison, which Mr. Van Auker attended, the La Crosse fair secretary forwarded a copy of resolutions adopted at that meeting to A. W. Trehn, secretary of the Association of Wisconsin Fairs, with instructions to forward the same in the form of a circular letter to the secretary of each fair in the state.

The resolution favoring the abandonment of prizes on grade sires felt that the awarding at county fairs of premiums on grade sires is a distinct detriment to the livestock industry of the state. It is resolved by the officials of the Wisconsin Livestock Breeders' association and the respective state breed associations that the officials of the Wisconsin State Association of county fairs be asked to urge the management of every county fair to discontinue at once the awarding of premiums to such animals, to instruct judges to discontinue such awarding, and to omit from the 1921 and all future premium lists any reference to grade sires.

At the suggestion of Mr. Frank Kleinhertz from the college of agriculture of the University of Wisconsin the meeting voted to recommend that the offering of premiums on fleeces of wool be discontinued.

The following recommendations to county fairs were approved:

That all judges of livestock be secured early.
That the names of the judges be printed in the premium list and, if possible, be printed at the head of each department or division.
That the time of judging for each breed of livestock be stated.
That the judge be required to explain the reason for placing the awards.

Rules of Premium Lists
Livestock breeders and their associations request, as far as possible, that the judge give his reasons for his placing of all animals. The fair management endorses this request. The request is made, knowing that if it is followed the people will derive a benefit in that they will learn the good and bad points, not only of the animal shown but also of the animals in the hearers herd.

Example Heading For Each Breed
Swine
Superintendent—John Doe.
Judge all breeds—John Brown.
Postoffice address.
Poland China

All animals must be ready for placements promptly at 10:00 a. m. (of some day of the fair) — 1921.

Recommendations
Have printed on white cardboard

about twenty-two by twenty-eight inches the names of all judges and their postoffice address for all livestock and give the time that judging will commence in each department. Have the cards tacked up in conspicuous places on the fair ground.

Have the above information printed one week before the fair in all local papers in the county.

If a stock parade is given, a card or small banner should be carried at the head of each herd, giving the name of the breeder and the kind of livestock. A good feature is to have some person with a megaphone announce from the grandstand the above information as the parade passes by. Care should be given in the selection of superintendent of each department of livestock at the fair so that each kind of livestock will be grouped by itself and proper cards should be placed upon the stalls of sheds or barns, giving the name of the breed, name of the animal, owner and postoffice address.

partment of livestock at the fair so that each kind of livestock will be grouped by itself and proper cards should be placed upon the stalls of sheds or barns, giving the name of the breed, name of the animal, owner and postoffice address.

In the average American city less than 25 per cent of the houses are lighted with electricity.

Care should be given in the selection of superintendent of each department of livestock at the fair so that each kind of livestock will be grouped by itself and proper cards should be placed upon the stalls of sheds or barns, giving the name of the breed, name of the animal, owner and postoffice address.

URGE BIGGER WAGE FOR HALF MILLION FEDERAL EMPLOYEES

Local Chamber of Commerce Gets Referendum Proposition on Big Question

Adequate and equitable pay for the army of more than half a million government employees is urged by the committee on budget and efficiency of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States as one of a series of proposals for a complete recasting of the federal civil service.

The report of the committee has been sent out today to a referendum vote of the 1,400 industrial and commercial organizations within the chamber's membership, and has been received by the Chamber of Commerce of La Crosse. It presents nine recommendations dealing with reclassification of personnel and related problems.

This is the thirty-fifth referendum taken by the chamber on important national questions. The purpose is to ascertain the opinion of business organizations respecting the recommendations made by the chamber's committee. The proposition to be voted on are as follows:

1.—The present system under which personnel for the federal civil service is secured and managed should be re-evaluated.

2.—Adequate and uniform pay under essentially like conditions should be established as a fundamental principle for the federal civil service through reclassification and regulation.

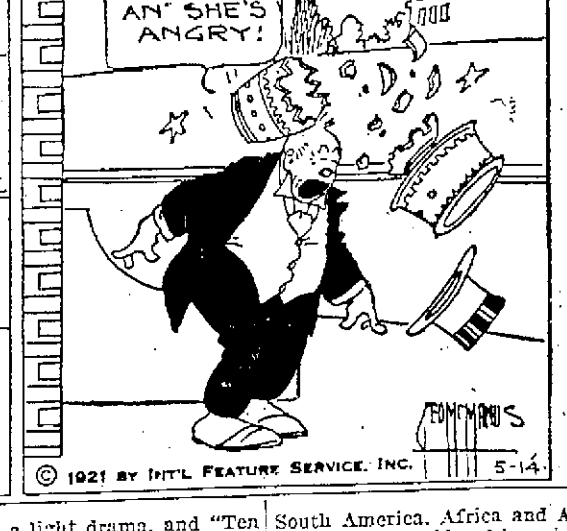

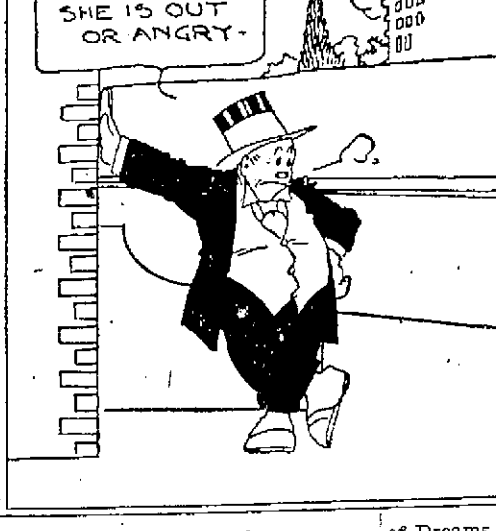

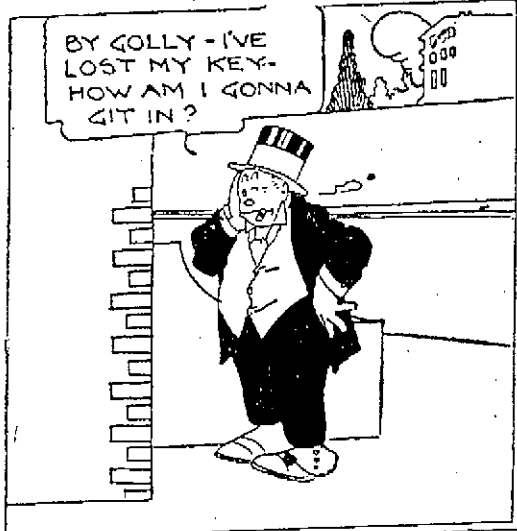

3.—Reclassification should be by statute based on investigations already made and further investigation by the civil service commission.

4.—Reclassification should be installed by the civil service commission and the budget bureau and current correction made by congress aided by these agencies.

5.—Promotion should be given statutory recognition as the preferred method for filling vacancies, with lines of promotion clearly defined and promotions made upon the basis of proved merit under civil service regulations.

6.—All administrative officers not responsible for determining policies

BRINGING UP FATHER

should be included under civil service rules.

7.—Transfers between departments should be regulated by executive orders consistent with the civil service law.

8.—Efficiency records should be developed by the civil service commission.

9.—Removal of an employee should be possible upon a written statement of reasons to the employee with opportunity for written reply, but without right of appeal above the head of the department.

Arguments are Given

The ballot as sent out is accompanied by the full report of the committee, which supports in detail the recommendations, and by arguments in the negative. The aim is to give the members of the chamber the fullest information available with respect to the propositions on which they are asked to vote. The arguments against the propositions advanced call attention to the fact that reorganization of government departments already has been proposed and that it might be well to delay any recasting of the civil service until this has been accomplished. Other objections to the committee's report also are brought out.

The committee in its report states its conviction that the subject of reclassification and related problems affecting the civil service are of pressing interest and importance.

"The personnel problem of an enterprise which engages the services of more than half a million employees cannot be minimized," it is declared. "If the public which foots the bill in ever increasing amounts for government costs is ever to receive a reasonable return on its investment, it is imperative that business now give this matter the thoughtful consideration which it deserves."

Public Business Behind

For all practical purposes, says the committee, personnel problems in the administration of the national government are those which are inevitable in a civilian force of nearly a half million men and women employed on work of almost every conceivable character.

"In private industrial and commercial life," says the report, "the innumerable questions relating to the efficient utilization of the operating and managing forces of the organization are now accepted as of vital importance to successful management of the business. In this field of administration of the public business government has lagged far behind. With the passage of time the statute books have become filled with a mass of varying directory or prohibitory of decisions of congress which today seriously hamper any successful handling of recognized problems of admittedly primary importance in establishing a businesslike administration of the federal service."

With reference to its recommendation that adequate and uniform pay under like conditions should be established the committee says:

"It is an elementary proposition that a body of employees permeated with a sense of unjust and inequitable treatment by the employer in the primary matter of just pay for service rendered will be inefficient and expensive. Present conditions in the federal service as to fixation of salary rates are perpetual incite as to discontent and half-hearted effort and an undoubted source of great waste of public money."

STUDIO PLAYERS TO STAGE BENEFIT PERFORMANCE HERE

Three Plays to be Presented at St. Joseph Hall for St. Michael's

The Studio Players, an organization of local amateur dramatists, are to stage a benefit performance for the St. Michael's Orphanage at the St. Joseph's hall, on Sixth street, between Main and King, on Thursday at 8 o'clock.

The performance will consist of three one-act plays, "The Flower Shop," a comedy bubbling over with fun but without the coarse humor too often found in comedies; "The Maker of Dreams," a light drama, and "Ten O'clock." All of the plays have played to crowded houses in New York and the larger cities and have been reproduced by amateurs throughout the states with great success.

Jennie Herman, who was a favorite at the piano in the high school prior to her graduation, will furnish the music between acts. Miss Rosalie Lyga, who coached the "Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary," which was such a decided success, is directing the coming performances.

Tickets are being sold by the school children as well as members of the cast or they can be obtained from Miss Lyga in her studio in the State Bank building. Tickets will also be on sale at the hall on the evening of the performance. Admission will be: Adults, 50c; children, 25c.

Truly a Strange Fish

A fish that growls and meows like a cat is found in certain parts of

South America, Africa and Australia, and this is considered by scientists to be in many respects the most wonderful fish in the world.

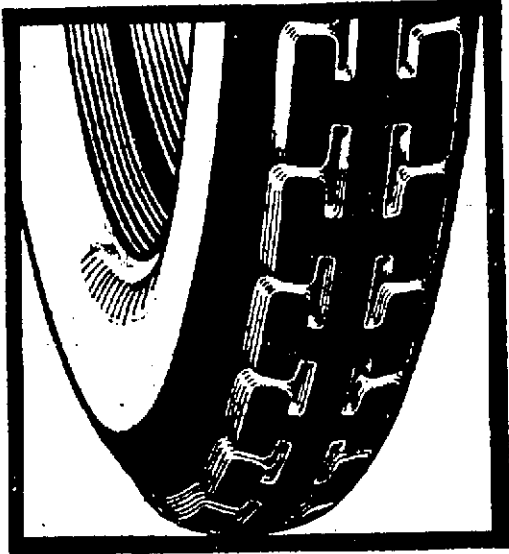

It looks much more like a snake than it does a fish. It has lungs and is obliged to put its head out of the water frequently to breathe. Lung fish, as these creatures are called, are a link between reptiles and fishes—the nearest kin to the original stock from which snakes and fishes had sprang.

Vest Pocket Bow-Wows

In England there is a wide prevailing fad for tiny dogs, the smaller the better. These tiny canines are adopted by women and are taken everywhere that their mistresses go. They are so small that they slip into a coat pocket or the hand bag when being taken from one point to another.

Each square mile of the earth's surface receives on the average of 100,000 kilowatts continually from the sun.

School Children of City in Big Historical Pageant Next Friday

The pageant, "The Growth of Freedom," to be presented on Friday afternoon, May Twentieth in the natural open air theatre in Myrick Park will picture dramatically the growth of the ideals of the United States. In this splendid portrayal of the development of the spirit of a great nation more than a thousand children of the La Crosse public schools will take part. Beautifully costumed, each scene carefully costumed to produce the most perfect dramatic and artistic effect, the brilliant pageant will proceed through five episodes giving a vivid interpretation of the development of the American ideal from the days when the Indian was the land's supreme ruler to the present.

The first episode will depict the Indian chieftain proudly surveying the beautiful country which is his; the second witnesses the arrival of the stranger, the meeting between the Indian and the white man, and the signing of the peace treaty. The third episode depicts the arrival of the white man, the signing of the peace treaty, and the signing of the peace treaty. The fourth episode depicts the arrival of the white man, the signing of the peace treaty, and the signing of the peace treaty.

charming arrangement of folk dances "America, the Melting Pot." In the last "The New America," a vigorous hopeful figure is revealed and grouped about her those forces which have throughout the history of the United States made "The New America" a reality.

Dances to be used in the course of the production will interpret both the changing spirit and historical incidents. One beautiful group, "Spring," "Summer," "Autumn" and "Winter," is to indicate gracefully the passage of time, another to show an incident in Indian life will be the "Arrow Dance."

Beautiful Features

Music and dancing are to be features of the presentation of the pageant. From the opening episode suitable melodies will be used to help create the proper mood while dances will further interpret the spirit of the moment. Flute-like bird notes and the fluttering of tiny children (Hamilton school kindergarten), representing Spirits of Nature will set a scene conveying the beauties of the open country, the America of the Indian.

Into this an Indian maiden, the part to be taken by Miss Stella Franc, will step, singing a beautiful new Indian composition of Lawrence called "Skibibila" which means "the first bird of spring." Girls of the first high school, the Hogan, Washburn, Lincoln and Washington schools will present the dances of the seasons. Indian life is further to be portrayed by the playing in the course of Episode Two of a Sioux Indian melody by the High school orchestra.

Arrow Dance Given

The "Arrow Dance" given by children of the Jefferson school to the accompaniment of drums occurs in this episode. Mrs. Pruess and Mr.

Soule will sing an Indian lover's song, "By the Waters of Minnetonka" and the High school Boys' Glee Club are to give as the scouts warning an Aztec melody called "Sun Worshippers." Another lovely song is the "Great Spirit's Appeal" from the "Peace Pipe" by Converse to be sung by John Lord.

In that portion of the pageant during which famous scenes from United States history are to be represented a great community chorus of three hundred voices will provide the musical setting. A quartette will give a "Hymn to the Mississippi."

As the westward movement of American life becomes marked and the sweep of American progress gains momentum the spirit of this phase of the development will be visualized through a symbolic dance called "Progress," presented by Miss Maude Jarvis and another called "Freedom" to be given by Miss Zita McDonough.

1—Virginia Fox, Hilda Sailer and Ruby Boyer, of the Hogan school, in the episode of "Spring."
2—Andrew Hauswirth, William Schwarz, Evelyn Jelde and Oswald Sagen, of High school, in the episode, "Development of Freedom."
3—Charlotte Grams and Carleton Burke as Pilgrims.
4—Jane Olson, Gertrude Wals and Viola Nedvick, in "Spring Dance."
5—Eloise White dances as "The Spirit of America."
6—Virginia Baker, George White and Beulah Atkinson represent "The First Americans."
7—"The Pioneers"—Frank Hickisch, Elsie Feinberg and Mary Reed.

and Logan schools, the High school and the Vocational school.
Inspiring Tableau
With the magnificent concluding tableau of the "New America" Mrs. Whelpley will sing America the Beautiful and at the close the assembled throng will unite in America. The plan is splendidly dramatic in every detail. The High school orchestra is to play for the dances, choruses and processions as well as to give special numbers.

The Walrus

BY C. A. W.
I thought it was an airplane skimming over the surface of the water when it was a mile away, but as it approached my little boat at the speed of an express train I finally discerned it was a sure-enough motorboat—a pure white craft with long, graceful lines, a prow which cut the water as keen as a knife and which left in its wake a swell of steamboat proportions. As it shot by I discerned the familiar face of Will Ott at the wheel of the craft, and it dawned upon me that the president of the S. & K. Mfg. company finally had achieved his life ambition, to own a motorboat which could show a pair of heels to the best of 'em in these parts. Sportsman of the first class and every inch a good fellow, Mr. Ott is being congratulated by motor boat fans of La Crosse on acquiring what is unquestionably the fastest craft on the upper Mississippi river, if not on the entire father of waters. I haven't any information as to whether Mr. Ott ever intends to do anything more with this beautiful boat than "beat it" between his office and summer home at Sunset Point in fifteen minutes and return in the morning in ten minutes, but if he ever can be persuaded to enter sail ship in the annual upper river regatta, I have a hunch he would make some of the down river fans who think their boats are the best ever, look as if they were dragging their wheels over a sandbar, in a race. If Bill and his new boat can't make forty per. I'm no judge of distance or speed. I don't think anyone in La Crosse would be puffed by Mr. Ott should add a big victory to the string of laurels which the fast motor boats owned by Vince Kidder and Theo. Thompson and some others acquired in previous regattas on the upper river.

"I think it is the general opinion of the majority of the members of the Kiwanis club, members of the agricultural bureau of the Chamber of Commerce and directors of the fair association who attended the Holstein sale at West Salem on May 19th that the building of a stock sales pavilion on the Interstate fair grounds should be undertaken as soon as possible," said Secretary Charles Van Auker of the fair association yesterday.

Charles Cone, one of the principal workers for this project in the Kiwanis club, which already has pledged $7,000 to the fund, H. Clay Jensen, father of the public milk stations, and various other boosters for the Gateway city, unite with Mr. Van Auker in declaring that the time seems near to push this meritorious proposition through to a successful conclusion. A livestock sales pavilion of the sort planned by the promoters, would make the La Crosse Interstate fair grounds the mecca of pure bred livestock breeders and buyers of the entire middle west. The boosters aver this is not a prophecy—it's a promise.

"Aronson & Tuteur" is the name of a firm of lawyers just hanging out a shingle in the Broadway building in Milwaukee. One of the names has a familiar sound and upon investigation we discovered the second man in the new legal association is none other than Armand J. Tuteur, son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Tuteur, of this city. Armand started out in business life as a newspaper reporter, but after the Leader-Press was put to press each afternoon persisted in hanging out in law offices until the shades of Blackstone got him away from the smell of printer's ink. He finished his law course at the state university and jumped right into a law office in and the state metropolis. That Armand has grown in the profession is indicated by the fact that he has ventured into business for himself, and a bunch of La Crosse lawyers and pencil-pushers as well as a good many other friends here, wish him the best of luck.

Prohibition is making more business for doctors than the mere writing of prescriptions, according to a side information coming from a source which cannot be questioned. Where moonshine is used in preference to a prescription, the medic, if once told, is often called upon to etam foot many "pounds of cure." I often a coffin is the result of imbibing liquors manufactured outside the law. The University of Minnesota department of pharmacology has tackled the job of finding the poison in cases of death caused by overdulgence in moonshine, and the experts have been forced to give it up. In at least five instances, the Indiana poisoners not yet known to act, and the best of cure in manure, is no insurance that a "shot" of liquor does not carry a "death kick."

"It is apparent from these cases that every drink of unknown liquor may be a 'cooner's cocktail,'" said Dr. A. D. Hirschfelder, director of the department of pharmacology. "These men apparently died from the effects of bad liquor, yet our analyses failed to show any of the poisons usually found in death of this character." Wood alcohol was found in the blood of several of the deaths of persons whose stomachs were sent in for analysis.

100 LBS. SUGAR, BUSHEL POTATOES, $100 IN 1920; $100 BUYS "STORE" NOW

A year ago $36 would buy:
100 pounds of sugar and
1 bushel of potatoes.
Today you may buy the following for $100:
100 pounds of sugar,
1 bushel of potatoes,
10 pounds of coffee,
25 pounds of lima beans,
25 pounds navy beans,
1 dozen peas,
1 dozen corn,
1 dozen cans No. 3 tomatoes,
4 48-pound sacks of flour,
10 pounds of rice,
1 gallon of sirup,
1 dozen eggs,
5 large packages corn flakes,
25 pounds corn meal.

According to L. E. Lavague, grocer, this is one of the best indications that the cost of living has been reduced in La Crosse in the past twelve months. But it is 30 cents cheaper than it was a year ago. It may now be obtained for 33 cents wholesale, or at least that is what Mr. Lavague pays for it. A year ago a peck of potatoes retailed for $1.30. They are 40 cents a bushel wholesale today. A year ago they brought $4 a bushel in the wholesale market.

Eggs have taken a decided drop from the 70 and 75 cent perch they occupied a year ago, and even six months ago. Flour has decreased as well as canned goods.

The bottom has dropped out of high the price market of a year ago.

REMINISCENCES DESIRED FOR STAGING HISTORICAL PAGEANT HERE IN SUMMER

On July 16th and 18th there is to be presented in this city a great spectacle, a dramatization of the complete history of La Crosse and surrounding territory from the days of the Indians down to the present day.

The La Crosse Community Pageant Association is financing the big event and the Thurston Management, Inc. of Minneapolis, has been engaged to put it on, the greatest undertaking of the kind ever presented in the state. There will be 800 or more people in the cast.

To be of value this great pageant must be historically correct and for that reason all the old settlers and all those of the youngest generation who have heard of early life in the country, are called upon to help.

Information is wanted from every part of the country. The names are wanted of all those who came to this country previous to 1870 and who are now living.

All the information is desired at once, so don't wait. Sit down and write all you know about the Indians you saw here, the trappers and hunters, first settlers, first marriages, first religious societies, Civil War incidents, any humorous incidents of the early days. Never mind about your writing or your grammar. We want the facts and want them quickly. The stories will be rewritten for publication.

In every village or township there is one or more who is interested in the local history. We urge individuals to send in all the material of historical nature they can gather.

Later there will be a call for the loan of historical objects, such as household furniture, farm implements and a thousand and one objects of interest.

If any old settler feels he cannot write his story of the early days he will find the school teacher, the newspaper man, preachers or others who will gladly do the work.

Address all communications to H. O. Williams, chairman, La Crosse.

Wood alcohol, according to the pharmacologists, inside the body changes to formalin and formic acid which, in very small quantities, are deadly poisons. They affect the brain, the optic nerve and generally produce permanent blindness at death does not result. The prohibition law does not necessary for druggists to make ethyl or grain alcohol denatured, but it should be sold except on a physician's prescription. This was done by adding various poisons which are designated by law so that it would be dangerous to drink the altered product. Bichloride of mercury, formaldehyde, carbolic acid and wood alcohol, all deadly poisons, often are used for this purpose, professional men claimed. In other words a man who partakes of a strange intoxicating drink, the ingredients of which he does not know, is flirting with death.

WOMAN'S AUXILIARY OF AMERICAN LEGION WILL SELL POPPIES

Jessie McKee Mission Club Raises Over $100 for Memorial Fund

WEST SALEM, Wis.—The Women's Auxiliary of the American Legion met on Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. John Oehlmann, with ten members present. The proceeds of the sale of the poppies will be given to the hospital for sick and disabled soldiers.

The Jessie McKee Mission Club realized over $100 on Monday from the dinner and supper which it conducted. It will be devoted to the Jessie McKee memorial fund.

Mrs. Rachel Brown, well known here, who has lived in Alabama for many years returned to West Salem the past week and will make her home with her brother, B. F. McIntosh.

At the regular meeting of the Eastern Star on Tuesday, the members served a delicious two-course dinner after which Mrs. Bechtold, Miss Meta Bechtold and Conrad Bechtold were initiated into the order.

M'GILVRAY'S FERRY BUSY PLACE IN THE EARLY DAYS BEFORE BRIDGE IS BUILT

The re-opening of the McGilvray bridge and road brings to mind tales of the early days when the ferry was first established at that point, says the Galesville Republican. McGilvray's was a place of interest for forty years following.

The first ferry across Black River in this section was off Decora Prairie. This crossing was known as Gordon's Ferry, which was abandoned when the Hunter bridge was built. The ferry at McGilvray's was established in 1854 by Alexander McGilvray, who came to Trempealeau (then known as Reed's Landing) in 1852. A year later he settled on the old homestead on Black River.

Dr. E. D. Pierce, one of the contributors to the History of Trempealeau County, published a few years ago, writes entertainingly of McGilvray's Ferry. From this it is learned that the first ferry boat in this crossing was a scow built in the streets of Trempealeau by Mr. McGilvray and the Charles Utter in March, 1854. The boat was hauled, to the McGilvray home by horses and launched early in the spring. Poles were used to operate the scow, and McGilvray's team of horses was used as cargo in the first test.

Rope Crosses River

Soon after, a heavy rope was stretched across the river, and the current carried the boat back and forth on this.

A year later a three-fourths inch jointed iron rod took the place of the rope, and still later a wire cable.

The first boat lasted two years. In all five boats were constructed from 1854 to 1892, when the bridge was built. The ferry charge was twenty-five cents for teams; thirty-five cents for four-horse wagons and ten cents for foot passengers.

McGilvray's was a busy place in the early days. The farmhouse became a roadside inn. Many travelers made that place the end of a day's journey. Alexander McGilvray was a genial host, and he often entertained his guests with his bagpipes, which he had brought with him from Scotland.

Busy Times During War

The late Rankin McGilvray, son of the old Scot, told Dr. Pierce of the ferry in Civil war times. He said: "When the war broke out we began to carry soldiers across the river. Hardly a day went by from the opening to the close of the war that we did not carry some of the boys, and at first they were all going one way, bound for La Crosse, Madison or Milwaukee, and then on to the front. But after the first Battle of Bull Run, and wounded soldiers began to return, and then we were carrying soldiers both ways until the war ended. You could always tell the wounded ones, for they were bandaged and crippled. Many had their arms in slings, and others walked on crutches; while some had bandaged heads. Father never charged soldiers anything for crossing on the ferry or for board or lodging."

In conclusion of his sketch, Dr. Pierce paints this picture: "When one turns and looks backward at the changeless pace, what strange visions come flooding through the brain. One can see the long procession winding down the road and passing in grand review along the old ferry at Black River. The footsore landseeker walking along the blazed trail and dreaming of the land where he can find a free home in the unsettled wilderness; and following in his footsteps comes the prairie schooner drawn by a yoke of oxen and headed toward the new settlement where lies the richest land that the sun ever shone on, almost unmarked by the plowshare. And then the stream of pioneers increases, and the stage coach comes into view, and the long train of freight wagons and the trader, and the lumberman mingle with the varied throng. And now we see a line of blue creep into the procession as it moves and we feel a patriotic pride as our soldier boys slowly cross the river, facing the grim reality of war where death stalks abroad. And we see the wounded return with empty sleeves and wan lips and take their way homeward. Onward the procession moves until on every vacant piece of land there rises a home, and the subdued soil blossoms with cultivated fields, where once the wild deer ranged. And anon the procession changes, the French-train and in their place comes the lumber wagon filled with golden grain for the market while the hum of our commercial age makes the very hills tremble; and the slow old ferry of long ago retreats up the river to sleep where old Chief Decora once looked out upon his peaceful village of smoking wigwams."

Powdered Fish Good Food

A great many fish are caught merely for the recovery of the oil contained in their bodies and after this is pressed out, the residue or what is called "cake," is used for fertilizer. A Japanese investigator has succeeded in making this available as a food and it is said to be very nourishing after the treatment which he gives it. It takes the place of "stock" in making soups and gravies.

Special "FORBIDDEN FRUIT" Section

FAIRYLAND SHOWN IN "FORBIDDEN FRUIT" SCENE BY DE MILLE

When it was announced that Cecil B. DeMille would film one important episode—the Cinderella fairland division—of "Forbidden Fruit," the Paramount picture, in a stage setting built completely of plate glass the scoffers arose in a mass and pointed out that it couldn't be done.

"It's impossible,"—so they said.

But Cecil B. DeMille didn't think so. Neither did his production manager, Howard Higgin, nor his photographer, Alvin Wyckoff. Theodore Kosloff, to whom was entrusted the task of designing the unique costumes and directing the dancers, likewise agreed that it was possible when all the world thought otherwise.

The first matter to be settled was the choice of a location for this set. After considerable deliberation it was decided that the Famous Players' studio tank would serve as a foundation, for the set. Inasmuch as a number of fountains, a waterfall beneath the wide glass stairway and two large shallow pools with black swans swimming about were included in the plans, this selection of the tank as the foundation came as a matter of course.

At this point, Production Manager Howard Higgin called into consultation the best show case construction men obtainable. Before these experts the plan was discussed in all of its multitudinous angles. At the conclusion of that interview, it was agreed that work should start at once and that the task of assembling sufficient plate glass for the purpose should be pushed forward with the greatest possible speed.

Glass of five-eighths inch thickness was selected. The Pacific coast boasts of but a limited supply of this grade of plate glass and it was necessary to corner the market to obtain a sufficient quantity for the purpose.

Following the usual procedure on set construction, plans were drawn by the Lasky art studio department. But these plans were unlike any previously drawn in that department or for the matter of that in any office of any motion picture studio. For the material to be used in this set was glass rather than wood and plaster as in the case of most other screen settings.

Two Pools and Fountains

Where the steps debouched onto the glass floor of the ballroom two wide, shallow pools were constructed. Rising from the surface of these pools were eight octagonal glass pillars each bearing at its apex a large basket of blown glass fruit over which the water from the inclosed fountains played. Black swans made these pools their home during the actual filming.

Over all this gorgeous expanse of crystal beauty was swung a canopy which passed in and out of the scene, tents of the ruse and which served to complete the picture and emphasize the beauty of the reflections on the crystalline floor.

When the set was in readiness, Theodore Kosloff marshaled his battery of four-score players. Costumes entrancing in opulent beauty anything ever seen on the screen or off had been provided for every mimic guest at the fairyland ball. The principals of the cast—Agnes Ayres, Forrest Stanley, Kathryn Williams, Shannon Day, Julia Payne and Theodore Kosloff—appeared in the costumes specially designed by the famous Russian dancer, Theodore Kosloff.

It required two days and the greater portion of one night to film this episode of the story, but the results more than justified the time and labor expended, not to mention the tremendous monetary outlay which such a scene must necessarily entail. At the conclusion of the actual filming, every member of the cast could truthfully claim complete fatigue. Even Cecil B. DeMille admitted that he had enough labor to last him for some little time.

All this activity registered in celluloid with flash across the silver screen in approximately three minutes. Weeks of work, countless planning and tremendous expense were expended to make this the most beautiful thing of its kind ever attempted on the screen.

FINE GOWNS WORN IN "FORBIDDEN FRUIT"

Leading Women Players in Film Charming Costumed

Gowns of surpassing beauty are shown in "Forbidden Fruit," which comes to the Rivoli theater for six days, beginning tomorrow. They were designed by Clara West.

Agnes Ayres, Kathryn Williams and Shannon Day play the principal feminine roles in "Forbidden Fruit," and the major portion of the gowns, negligees and other appointments of my lady's wardrobe were designed for them.

Perhaps the most striking gown in Agnes Ayres' wardrobe is a gown which Miss Ayres wears through much of the action. All of Miss West's creations are of the ultra-modern, super-fashionable type. Of another type are the gorgeous costumes of another period designed by Theodore Kosloff and executed by Clara West for the Cinderella vision which forms an important part of the story.

Advanced Sanitation

A new tooth brush has removable bristles. The latter are made of vegetable fiber and are designed for single use only. They are discarded after each use and replaced by fresh ones.

Miniature Autos Popular

A very small and economical operated automobile is being manufactured on the Pacific coast which is an exact replica of the larger types. One man can almost lift it.

AGNES AYRES, DE MILLE LATEST LEADING LADY, WANTS TO GO ON STAGE

"Some day—somewhere, I'm going to play on the stage."

In her dressing room at the Lasky studio, between scenes of Cecil B. DeMille's production, "Forbidden Fruit," the Paramount picture, Agnes Ayres voiced her pet secret ambition.

"I've always wanted to go on the stage; ever since I was a little girl. I've nursed the idea of some day playing behind the footlights, and I never have."

"I've been in pictures nearly four years," continued the lovely leading woman of Cecil B. DeMille's current production, "I've played with most of the big producers and in support of some of the highest stars. I'm not dissatisfied with my screen work. I love it. But I can't help wanting to go on the stage."

"I don't know why I have never tried to gratify that longing. Perhaps because I've been too busy playing in pictures. You know I have played most of the time since I made my debut some years ago. There has never been a long interval between pictures. If there had been I might have cast about for an opening on the stage. But luck—good or bad—kept me occupied with screen acting."

"The strange part about all of this is the fact that most of my early screen work was in the center of stage activity—New York city, Los Angeles is the center of motion picture productions; New York is the home of the stage producers of note."

"Yet in all the time I spent in the East, I never made an effort to secure a part on the stage there. And now that I'm several thousand miles away from it, the desire to go on the stage is stronger than ever."

"You are not thinking of abandoning screen work for the stage," in answer to the unvoiced query. "I have a perfectly good, long-term contract with the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation which would stand in the way even if I were contemplating any such move. And I'm not thinking about much of anything except my work with Mr. DeMille. That in itself is enough to keep anyone busy."

"But I like to think about what I might do if things were different. I like to dream of success on the stage, of the applause of the audience—if I were lucky enough to win applause, and of the romance of the theatre."

"Perhaps I should be disappointed," smiled Miss Ayres. "One never knows what might happen if one's dreams came true. But I am going to gratify that ambition some day, just to see how much the real and the dream resemble each other."

"Who is my favorite actress? Really I have two favorites and they are just as different as can be. I have always admired Laurette Taylor—and wanted to do the things she does on the stage. And I fell precisely the same way about Mrs. Pike."

"So you see it must be just a childhood notion of mine. I can't possibly copy both of them. I don't want to imitate either of them. I would like to be just Agnes Ayres—with a touch of the charm of both of them."

"That's asking a great deal I know. And I may never get a chance to try. But I can go on wishing. And I am most certainly going on acting for the screen while I dream I never let any stage dream interfere with my screen work. That's reality and a very dear and vital reality. The other is just the survival of a small girl's idea of a grown-up ambition."

Miss Ayres was recently selected by Cecil B. DeMille to play the chief feminine role in the latter's special production, "Forbidden Fruit," which will be seen here this week. She plays opposite Forrest Stanley, the talented young leading man recently acquired by Mr. DeMille, and Clarence Burton, veteran character actor. Theodore Roberts, Kathryn Williams, Theodore Kosloff, Shannon Day, Thornton Johnson and Julia Payne are in the supporting company in the picturization of Jeanie Macpherson's story.

WHAT IS "FORBIDDEN FRUIT"?

By GRACE KINGSLEY

"What is forbidden fruit, anyway?" I asked Cecil B. DeMille.

The producer of satirical photographs on marriage had paused for lunch at the Lasky studio at Hollywood. All morning he has been working on his new special production entitled "Forbidden Fruit," the Paramount picture. The picturesque director, in his khaki-colored trousers, puttees and cream-colored silk shirt, smiled across at his brother William and answered quite bravely I thought:

"I'm defining forbidden fruit as women we shouldn't have."

"And therefore want?" I tried to corner him.

"I don't know about the therefore," he laughed. "But anyway I guess you might say the rest of it is universal."

"And you're always universal in your theories?"

"Ah, that's it. That's what I try to be. It's the combination of the universal and the concrete that of course makes appealing drama."

It seems the new story involves a new angle on the marriage problem. Which, of course, the sophisticated DeMille already has guessed from Cecil's explanation.

But he's something of a missionary at any rate, he says. He hopes, indeed, that he has done some good with his stories in reaching married folk to laugh at their little troubles and get together again.

He has, in fact, had many letters to that effect. Though why an artist with a "do" before his name should bother with the didactic side of a question, I don't know.

"Those gently satirical plays about marriage and its everyday troubles, and even some of the big ones, help, because the people can see the truth and yet laugh at the same time," he went on.

"That is," William DeMille interpolated whimsically, "if both individuals have the same kind of sense of humor."

"We human beings are all alike and all do the same things, even if sometimes in a different way, is a part of the DeMille philosophy."

"People ask me," DeMille went on, "why I make so many plays with sex themes. I do it, I tell them, because sex is universal—it's the one thing that everybody has."

"Marriage is therefore the best theme for a play, because it's a relation involving sex, a relation which everybody has had, has, is going to have or wants to have. So those in it are interested, and those outside are interested in finding out about it."

Then Mr. DeMille went on to say that it was ceremony between husband and wife that is the secret of happy marriage. Which is, of course, a happy pill that people have been told to swallow thousands of times, but it remained for DeMille to give the sugar-and-spice coating to the medicine.

DeMille intends making a series of these social satires on marriage. And he means to continue to be perfectly frank in his treatment of the theme, despite, for instance, the shock the Philadelphia Board of Censors recently got because in one scene he showed a glimpse of apparel of a lady delicately—that article of a lady's garments known as "panties."

"All the angles of the sex question, you will notice, are treated from the

CECIL B. DEMILLE WAVES THE MAGIC WAND; BEHOLD

Once, years ago—more or less—you were a child and you dreamt of childish things. In your imagination towering castles rose with diamonds and shrouded with gold. You waved the magic wand of fancy and saw palaces of crystal that glittered with precious stones, lovely princesses and ladies in waiting, gay cavaliers, fairy godmothers, faeries, evil and good, thronged the scene, and always you were the poor little Cinderella or the lad who fared forth to seek his fortune and invariably you found and wooed the fairy princess or were transformed into a princess to be wooed by the Prince Charming of your dreams.

You have put away D'Aulnoy and Laboulaye, Anderson and Grimm; you have forgotten Andrew Lang and Howard Pyle; your dream castles are still there, but years and the eases of life have drawn a veil over your vision and you see them no more, save on some rare occasion when the mood and the environment combine to rend the veil momentarily and you catch fleeting visions of the things beyond.

The Yellow Dwarf and the White Cat, the King of the Black Isles and Loquacious Scherezade, the Princess who lived on a glass hill and the old woman who lived in a shoe—all are memories as of a different life.

Yet today, we who fancy we have outgrown these things, will be the first to welcome them when they are brought to us by Cecil B. DeMille, the producer of Paramount special photographs, in his newest picture, "Forbidden Fruit."

The vision of Cinderella and the ball she attends after the kindly fairy has transformed her into a thing of beauty is the result of the combined efforts of Jeanie Macpherson, the author; Clara West, costume designer; Howard Higgin, production manager; Paul Chadla, architectural designer; Theodore Kosloff, who suggested many of the costumes and the decorations; the actors, the staff of assistants, the cameramen under Alvin Wyckoff, Wilfred Buckland, art director, and, first of all, Cecil B. DeMille.

Each contributed to what is admitted by everyone who has seen it to be the most exquisite and sumptuous scene that has ever been devised for a photodrama.

It will last upon the screen less than five minutes—probably not more than three. It took many days of preparation to build, many days of labor on costumes, lighting, "shoot" and innumerable brainstorms. This is an evidence of the lengths to which producers for Paramount will go to get perfection and to achieve the unusual.

CECIL B. DEMILLE'S LATEST—"FORBIDDEN FRUIT"—REACHES PINNACLE OF MOTION PICTURE ART PRODUCTION

Clarence Burton, Agnes Ayres and Theodore Roberts in Cecil B. DeMille's Production, "Forbidden Fruit," A Paramount Picture.

Cecil B. DeMille's superb Paramount picture, "Forbidden Fruit," which will be shown at the Rivoli tomorrow, decidedly marks an era in motion-picture magnificence unproduced even in this day of stupendous productions. Agnes Ayres, the leading woman player, is a suffering wife living in a tenement.

The story is embellished by a vision of Cinderella, in which Mr. DeMille's genius is displayed to the finest advantage. It is colorful, strongly effective and produced on a scale of magnificence unproduced even in this day of stupendous productions. Agnes Ayres, the leading woman player, is a suffering wife living in a tenement.

ment; Clarence Burton, a gambler and crook, plays the role of the husband, and Theodore Roberts is an oil king who has an important part in shaping the girl's career. The story was written by Jeanie Macpherson, while the photoplay was the work of Alvin Wyckoff and Karl Struss.

HOW CECIL B. DEMILLE MAKES HIS BIG PICTURES

Cecil B. DeMille, director general of the Famous Players-Lasky Company, and producer of some of the most successful photoplays given to the screen, goes about his work quietly but deliberately, after months of story preparation and never-ending detail relative to scenes, sequences and photographic and lighting values.

For Cecil DeMille enters upon each production with the ambition of making it better than any of its predecessors. Sometimes it takes him six months to finish a picture, starting with the selection of the story and ending with the final cutting and the release of the picture. The actual photographic work is often completed within six weeks or two months after shooting begins.

He works and creates his screen values while closed alone in one of the most artistic, weird and yet inspiring settings ever conceived, wherein creative genius could reveal Mr. DeMille's private office at the Lasky studio, entered by only a few people outside his intimate circle of acquaintances and business association, is the last word in comfort and seclusion. The floor is covered with luxurious and costly rugs of magnificent design, and the walls are decorated with a thousand and one relics and souvenirs and art subjects. His magnificent table is located almost in the center of this paradise, and it is here that he reads stories, and confers with heads of scenario departments about stories and where he transacts big business deals that often startle the motion picture world.

When the final continuity of this story has been officially OK'ed, Mr. DeMille then calls his art director and several more days are spent on the story.

Then he discusses lighting and photographic values with his chief cameraman. He calls in the principals in the cast and many rehearsals are held. Finally, when production begins, Mr. DeMille personally directs all scenes. He passes much time in examining shadows and lightings and artistic and photographic effects through the camera. That's why each of his productions is stamped with the exquisite DeMille touch.

Recently passed six hours on a DeMille set, where 100 people were waiting, before the cameras clicked a single foot of film. The people present just waited until the big director was satisfied that every detail was correct and that every mechanical, as well as dramatic advantage, could be presented in perfect union with the spirit of the sequence to be filmed. But in exercising his caution and his patience and attention in detail, Mr. DeMille is always able to film his scenes correctly, thereby eliminating "retakes" and after all saving money in the final expense analysis.

When the filming has been completed, Mr. DeMille personally takes charge of the cutting and filing. After this detail has been attended to, he previews the picture several times, before critical and trained audiences, consisting of studio officials and story attaches. The picture is always put through the "acid test" before it is released to the American public, and then later to the world.

Backs Up the Bertillon System

An important adjunct to crime detection is reported from Paris. The new plan supplements the Bertillon system of measurements and finger-prints. It has been found that a man can be traced not by finger-prints alone but by marks on any part of the body. Any of the pores of the skin may be located. This is the discovery of Dr. Locard, head of the French Police School at Lyons. Criminals often use gloves to foil detection, but the forearm, or the elbow may give a print equally as valuable for identification.

Agnes Ayres and Forrest Stanley in scene from Cecil B. DeMille's Production, "Forbidden Fruit," A Paramount Picture.

NEW CUTTING PROCESS

Working on a system of his own devising, Cecil B. DeMille makes it a practice to film considerably more material than the story promises to require. When it is remembered that every scene is photographed at least three times by a battery of two or more cameras, "shooting" from various angles, the total footage thus acquired reaches an enormous total.

The advantages of this system are many and varied. Perhaps the chief reason for its use is that it provides the director with the greatest possible range of choice when the task of assembling the film is undertaken.

Difficulties Presented

"Forbidden Fruit," the latest effort of Cecil B. DeMille for the Paramount organization, offers an interesting example of the difficulties which follow in the wake of the actual filming of the scenes.

When "cut to continuity"—in other words, when assembled incident by incident as filmed—the negative of "Forbidden Fruit" totalled eleven reels. Inasmuch as the finished picture was designed to total seven reels, considerable cutting was needed to bring this total of eleven reels down to the required footage.

This work was done entirely by Cecil B. DeMille, ably assisted by Ann Danchewski. When matters pertaining to the subtitles were under discussion, Jeanie Macpherson, author of the scenario, was called into consultation.

With each running of the picture, Cecil B. DeMille exercised his editorial prerogative with the result that the total footage steadily decreased.

Calls in Experts

At the end of this process, which required weeks of concentrated effort, the footage was reduced to eight reels. At this point Cecil B. DeMille called in such experts as William DeMille, himself a producer of note; Frank Woods, supervising director of Paramount pictures, and the members of the production staff who were thoroughly familiar with the story.

"One rule may be kept in mind at all times in the cutting of a picture," says Mr. DeMille, "and that is that each scene must be just a little bit shorter than it might be. This is an application of the rule that too much of anything, however good, inevitably results in revulsion of feeling. By giving the public just a little less than it would like to see of each scene, the producer sends his audience away with his appetite appeased but not satisfied. All this sounds easy in the telling, but is really one of the most difficult phases of motion picture making."

mental and the temperamental angles," he continued. "That keeps the drama sane and amusing. I'm leaving the revelations of brutes to others."

"Ah," I said to myself, "others!" But he went on:

"I think that's the treatment which Anglo-Saxon audiences prefer. Americans have the cleanest treatment of the sex question speaking from a dramatic and literary standpoint, of any nation in the world. And Americans have the cleanest point of view and the highest respect for women."

"But, of course, we are getting franker. On, in every way. If, twenty years ago a woman had walked down the street with a dress to her knees she would have been mobbed."

"We're franker in our discussions, too. But there are not revellers in dirt, but are merely a string of truth. This recalls by contrast the old days of prudery when once my grandmother was entertaining a mixed company, and I, a small boy at the time, piped up and uttered to lady's night, 'My dear!'"

"My dear!" she exclaimed, "it's not for gentlemen to talk about! Why my husband never saw me in my nightgown!"

"Why, grandma, I expostulated, and it was then the company got the shock of their lives. 'What do you wear to bed?'"

"The curd was drawn, of course, and I never did find out. But as she was a very proper person, I'm sure it must have been some discreet sort of garment."

"FORBIDDEN FRUIT"

BY JEANE MAC PHERSON

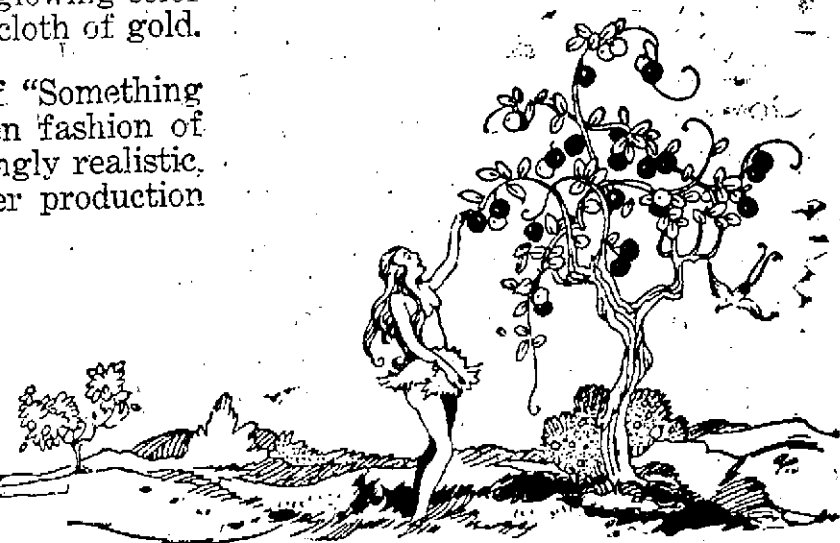

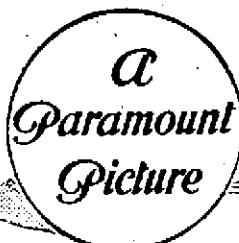

What are the duties a wife owes a husband who steadily drags her downward? What shall she do when another offers a fine, true love that would lift her up.

These are the questions asked and answered in "Forbidden Fruit." A drama warm with the flesh and blood of living men and women. Dressed in all the glowing color and luxury that DeMille can weave like a cloth of gold.

A story that blends the spiritual beauty of "Something to Think About" with the flare and silken fashion of
"Why Change Your Wife?" More thrillingly realistic, more sumptuously staged, than any other production
DeMille has created.

The World Famous Emotional Play

PAULINE FREDERICK IN "MADAME X" AT RIVIERA MONDAY

Picture Adapted from Famous French Stage Play. Opens Run on North Side

Pauline Frederick, in the title role of the great emotional play and picture, "Madame X," will be featured at the Riviera Monday and Tuesday, Casino Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, and the Strand on Saturday. "Madame X" was hailed by the public as one of the greatest plays ever presented, when produced on the speaking stage with Dorothy Duncanson in the title role. The play was adapted to the American stage from the French play by Alexander Bisson.

Critics who have seen private showings of the picture declare it represents some of the finest screen acting in Miss Frederick's list of screen successes. In fact, her interpretation of the title role has been called a "triumph." The picture is one of the greatest depicting mother love. The heights of thrilling action being reached in the now famous courtroom scene where the son of Madame X, not knowing that the woman before the bar of justice is his mother, makes a tremendous fight to have her convicted and sentenced to death.

WAKON GIRL AND LANSING MAN WED
WAKON, Iowa. — Miss Mildred Blanchard of this city and Mr. Joseph Strub of Lansing were married in the Catholic church in Lansing Tuesday morning by Monsignor Maxmiller. The attendants were Miss Dorothy Deener of Waukon and Mr. Leo Strub, a cousin of the groom. A wedding breakfast at the Strub home followed the ceremony and the young couple departed on a honeymoon trip to points in western Iowa and South Dakota. Upon their return they will begin housekeeping on Mr. Strub's farm near Thompson's corner, six miles from Lansing.

Cowboy Singers Feature Majestic Vaudeville Monday

Majestic vaudeville for the week will open with a bill featuring four musical cowboys from the far west, known as the Great Western Four. These lads in the hair-ponies have splendid voices, blending harmoniously in old songs of the plains as well as in modern jazz ditties. All four of them are singers of talent, and the act has been well received elsewhere both for solo and ensemble work. The second act on the bill for the first half of the week, opening Monday, is that of Perez and La Flour, two clever European acrobats with a routine of difficult stunts. The Three Queens of Harmony are featured for the last half of the week, opening at the Majestic on Wednesday. These are three pretty misses with an original offering of harmony singing. Their voices are excellent, and their selections are both of the classic and popular order. They are well-reputed in vaudeville because of the dainty and fashionable nature of their wardrobes, which adds materially to their offering. Nell and Gus Saulto, in a variety of machine-gun patter and eccentric dancing are also on the boards for the last half of the week.

CHINESE MISSIONARIES VISITING IN LANESBORO
LANESBORO, Minn.—Mr. and Mrs. K. T. Tvedt, from Klanningham, in the province of Heunan, China, have recently arrived here for a visit with Mrs. Tvedt's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Sechre, of Holt township. Their journey of thousands of miles consumed six weeks' time. They are missionaries, having labored in China for several years. Their four children were all born in China, and like their parents, the older ones speak Chinese language fluently. The family were met at the Lanesboro depot by the Lanesboro hand.

RIVOLI TO GIVE THREE ACTS OF BIG TIME VODVIL SUNDAY

New Feature of the House's Policy Makes its Debut Today With Classy Bill

A brand new feature of the policy of the Rivoli is the installation of vaudeville as a permanent part of the Sunday performances. The Rivoli vaudeville will make its debut this week, and it is notable for the fact that all of the acts are on the Orpheum circuit, the "big time" as it is known in stage circles. Three acts will be presented at the Rivoli today. The opener is Miss Dora Hilton, "the girl with the golden voice." Miss Hilton appears with Fred Ahl at the piano in a charming offering of classic and popular songs. Wallace Galvin, "the ex-sportsman," who is said to get more fan out of an egg than any one could believe was in it, is also on the bill, and the third act is one of those black-face comedian turns which are so relished by La Crosse audiences. The burr-cork boys are Powell and Adair.

CENTERVILLE CHURCH STAGES ENTERTAINMENT RAISES FUND FOR BUILDING TREMPERALEAU, Wis.—Two hundred and fifty persons attended the program given Thursday evening at the Centerville Methodist church by the Ladies' Aid society. Eighty-three dollars was raised which will be used to help meet the expense of the recent remodeling of the church building. A mock trial presented by fifteen women of the church was the principal feature of the program. Gratiified by the success of Thursday's event, the society is planning to repeat the entertainment at Caledonia Monday night and at Trempealeau on Tuesday night.

MEASLES LEADS INFLUENZA RACE HERE LAST YEAR

Efficient Work Being Done in Health Department, Annual Report Shows

Measles and influenza led the list of contagious diseases which affected residents of La Crosse last year, according to the annual report of Health Officer A. M. Murphy. While nurses of the city were tied up with the influenza epidemic, measles got a start and spread among the children of the city.

There were 111 cases of smallpox in the city during the year, 24 cases of diphtheria, 539 cases of measles, 586 cases of influenza, 21 of whooping cough, 35 of scarlet fever and 41 of mumps.

The report of Mr. Murphy, which calls attention to the efficient work done by the visiting nurses and the necessity of vaccinating children to prevent smallpox, follows:

Nursing Service
"Of the thirty-six cases of scarlet fever that occurred in 1920 we feel sure that the unrecognized, or mild cases have been responsible for a great many of the trouble. That is, the disease exists without restriction, are responsible for a number of cases also. Only in a few instances could cases be traced to contacts in school, cases being so widely distributed (sporadic) as to speak that I feel positive when I say good stuff has contributed at least to our trouble and this department cannot too highly commend the work of the county nurse in educating the rural population as to the danger of spreading contagion in dairy products. Following up and rearing for contagious diseases in the country districts ought to be highly appreciated by those that this method seeks to provide protection for. No other source will spread contagion as rapidly as dairy products, as we are virtually eating disease with no chance of escape.
The large number of influenza cases during the first part of 1920—586 in all—and also the general outbreak of measles occurring during the first months of the year, numbering 539 cases. However, the regular nurses and students worked late and early without a murmur until in May when these diseases subsided and conditions became normal again. The number of cases of contagious diseases found by the department during the year totals 743. Measles 539; diphtheria 5, scarlet fever 5, small pox 77, chicken pox 49, whooping cough 28, mumps 37, while this number represents only a part of the cases reported during the year. It is well known that they occur in the homes, and among the class that rarely if ever isolate a member of the family to protect the public and thereby contribute to the spreading of disease by other members of the family mingling with the public and also the patient.
If contacted cases were not followed up and restricted, we would have a much higher rate of contagious disease to report.
In this respect I wish to say that the regular nurses have proven their ability to recognize disease wherever it was found in their daily calls. Miss Buck and Miss Jahniak deserve special mention for their keen sense of duty to this department in watching and following up all cases of a suspicious nature. Such services for the protection of health and good reliable work in the homes ought to be well rewarded. Miss Kimball, Supervisor of Nurses, will spend more time in the field, being relieved of some of the clerical work that has to be done in the office; the keeping of records, the giving out and receiving of calls for the nurses in the field, quarantine calls, complaint calls, etc., will be handled by Miss Koeney. No commendation need be given the supervisor for handling and instructing the nurses. The certifying by the State Board of Health of fourteen of the nurses speaks for itself, as very capable and efficient work.

Food and Sanitary Inspection
A large volume of work is performed by one man, and there is work always left undone. Cities this size have at least two sanitary inspectors that do sanitary inspection only. With 233 sewer connections made during the year, as compared with 149 for 1919, I feel that with the exception of four court cases, that we are getting as good if not better co-operation than some years in the past. In no case where it might mean the sacrifice of the home has force been resorted to. We intend to be considerate but firm, as in the past, in regard to sanitary improvements and hope citizens will be considerate with us.
Small Pox Prevalent
"It seems useless to speak of the attitude of a large percentage of our citizens in regard to vaccinating their children, if this is continued it will not be long until we will have a visitation of this loathsome disease in a most virulent form as has happened in some states the past year. In one state in the south 50 per cent of the cases were fatal. Our records are far from being complete, but figuring the very minimum time lost by wage-earners of families quarantined for small pox in 1920 it would be 744 days. The very smallest figure for this time would be $3.00 per day. Children lost 5,431 school days. You have 185 days in a school year, this would represent 29.3 school years. School authorities figure when a child goes back it costs the city $62.20, or in other words, this loss to the city totals $1,825.07; loss in wages $2,232.00; total loss to the city and to families $4,057.00.
"This does not account for days lost while some of the children not vaccinated were dismissed for a period of 16 days. A large number remained out in preference to being vaccinated. It would seem that compulsory vaccination will be the only way to keep small pox out of our schools. This city is now operating under a special charter law and this feature could be enforced, I am sure. Each child as it enters school should have a certificate of one successful vaccination. A great many have a morbid fear of this protection, maintaining it is the wrong time of the year to have their children vaccinated. We hope with the coming of warm weather parents will give this public health measure serious thought. If you want to protect your family and neighbor, see that vaccination is repeated until at least once successful.
"While this department took no active part on Tag Day it was encouraging to the nurses and supervisor that the response was so generous from rank and file. I wish to thank the Board of Health for their confidence in me and if this confidence should continue I shall give in the future as in the past my very best efforts to safeguard the public health of this community. I also thank the members of the Health committee and all those who helped us in our work the past year, physicians, parents and schools."

A. M. MURPHY,
Health Officer.

The Most Beautiful Car in America

A Car With Personality

There is an air of distinction about the New Series "Glenbrook" that you will find in no other moderate priced, five passenger car. That is why it has been adopted by really smart people who will not tolerate the commonplace.

Then, remember, it not only looks but acts the thoroughbred. Under the hood there is a marvelously efficient motor that accelerates from five to twenty five miles per hour in nine seconds flat. This means giant energy for hills and every test of the highway.

Last, but not least, the "Glenbrook" is a rigid Economist. It extracts every atom of power from a gallon of gasoline and turns up surprising mileage on a set of tires. It is a thrift car with a keen sporting personality—a very hard combination to find.

But we ask you to establish these facts for yourself. Take just one ride in the "Glenbrook" and discover what actually lies hidden under the hood. It will prove a revelation, we believe, and a liberal education in strictly modern engineering.

INCLEMENT WEATHER PROVES DRAWBACK TO NORMAL ATHLETICS

Return Game With St. Mary's of Winona Has Been Cancelled; No Dates on List

INTER-CLASS TRACK MEET BEING ARRANGED

Tennis Made Requirement of Physical Education Students

INCLEMENT weather of the past few days has proven to be somewhat of a drawback to the work of the normal school track and baseball teams.

The field has been too wet of late to permit much of any baseball practice, though Coach Nohr has had the team out whenever it was possible. There are at present no games on the baseball schedule. The return game which was to have been played with St. Mary's next Wednesday afternoon has been cancelled.

Inter-Class Meet

It was the intention of Coach "Tubby" Keeler of the track team, to have the class meet not later than next Saturday, however, due to the fact that it is impossible to arrange for any dual meets with other normal schools in this section the annual inter-class affair will probably not be held until the Saturday before the state meet.

The state meet will be held at Madison this year, on June 1. At this time representatives are sent from all of the normal schools in the state, and the championship is decided.

Tennis Required

Tennis, as a branch of the normal school athletic activities, is gaining a good foothold among the students. It has been made a requirement for all physical education students, and a great many students from the other departments are on the courts whenever possible. "The girls' tennis club, which was organized last fall, is staging a tournament among its members. The club has been divided into squads, and elimination games are played on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons. As soon as the elimination games are over, the winners will compete for first place.

REORGANIZATION OF BOXING COMMISSION CARRIED IN ALBANY

ALBANY, N. Y.—The Simpson-Brundage bill reorganizing the state boxing commission became a law Saturday with Governor Miller's signature.

Under provisions of the law wrestling as well as boxing matches will be placed under the jurisdiction of an unpaid commission—the offices of the present three commissioners who receive annual salaries of $5,000 each being abolished.

Three deputy commissioners to serve at annual salaries of $4,000 each.

The Walker boxing law, which permits fifteen round contests to decisions, is not changed by the reorganization bill.

KEARNS ENGAGES SEVERAL BOXERS TO TRAIN JACK

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.—Jack Kearns, manager for Jack Dempsey, announced Saturday that he had engaged several well-known boxers and trainers to assist the champion in his work of preparing for the bout with Georges Carpentier, the French champion, at Jersey City on July 2.

Among those who will help in the workouts, Kearns said, are: Martin Burke, New Orleans; Jim Darcy, Portland, Ore.; Leo Horak, Lancaster, Pa.; Jeff Clark, Joplin, Mo.; Marty Cross, Chuck Wiggins, and Jackson, New York, and Eddy O'Hara.

The newly constructed indoor ring at the camp was completed and the bleachers to seat 10,000 persons are being erected.

LOCAL HIGH SCHOOL TRACK CREW MEETS WINONA THIS WEEK

Teachers' College and Winona High School to Come Here for Second Meet

The La Crosse high school track team, after its defeat at the hands of the Winona teachers' college and the Winona high school teams last Saturday at the Gopher city, will come back stronger than ever at their next meeting and will attempt to win first honors. Next Saturday, May 21, the two Winona teams will journey here for the final contest, and the Red and Black will attempt to wrest a victory.

La Crosse, however, was the victim of the flux at last Saturday's meet. "Dutch" Engelke, who has made better time in both the mile and the half-mile than was made at the Winona meet, twisted his ankle and was unable to take part in either of these events. He has also fussed the directors for a winning distance on former occasions. The relay team was forced to get away under a very poor start, but managed to finish second.

Under favorable conditions, they will walk away with this number.

George Vendrashek of the Winona high school, posted out his cousin, "Mooney" Vendrashek of this city, for first honors in some of the events. "Mooney" states that he will do his best to get even. In one event, the javelin throw, "Mooney" has reached a further distance than that scored at the meet a week ago.

STAR GROCERY DEFEATS NINTH STREET SLUGGERS

Saturday afternoon the Star Grocery baseball team defeated the Ninth Street Sluggers by a score of 26 to 7. The game was featured by the heavy slugger of the Star Grocery, Russ Meiner, who knocked a home run in the ninth inning for the Star Grocery. This is the Star Grocery's second victory as they defeated the Normal Indians a week ago. The batteries were: Star Grocery—McCormick, Emmert, Sanford and Duffy; Ninth Street Sluggers—Peters and Trellwitz.

BADGER TENNIS STARS DEFEAT NORTHWESTERN

CHICAGO, Ill.—The University of Wisconsin tennis team defeated Northwestern university's net men Saturday, winning five of six matches played. The purple's only victory was in one of the doubles matches.

FIGHTING IN ITALY

ROME.—Disorders occurred Thursday at Rome, near Albino, northwestern Italy. Barricades were erected by communists who laid an ambush for bands of fascists and hurled bombs at passing groups of their opponents. The fascists attacked but were forced to withdraw.

Troops with machine guns finally dislodged the anti-fascist forces.

YANKEE BATSMAN RAPS SPHERE FOR ENTIRE DISTANCE

CLEVELAND, Ohio.—Babe Ruth made his eleventh home run of the season in the eighth inning of the game here today between Cleveland and New York Americans. Two men were on base. Bagby was pitching.

"Packed House" Expected Out At Copeland

THIS afternoon at Copeland park baseball grounds the Nelson Clothing Co. ball team will open the season of the national game with the Peerless Chain aggregation of Winona.

Playing the first game following the reorganization of the team for the 1921 season, the north side nine was defeated at the hands of the outfit with whom they are matched in the game this afternoon by a score of 8 to 6.

It has been announced that Bobby Ritter will make his appearance on the mound for the local club today. Great things are expected of him as a pitcher. Bobby is a worker—come out and give him your support. Tanke will be seen in his usual position.

Those who witness the game will see the famous "Cannonball" Moss defying the local batsmen with Conkey, at one time identified with the Pirates, at the receiving end.

With favorable weather, the "house" should be packed.

WINONA HIGH SCHOOL RETURNS VICTOR IN GOPHER TRACK MEET

WINONA, Minn.—Winona high school, taking first place in eight of the thirteen events, in addition to winning the relay, was returned victor in the second annual southeastern Minnesota interscholastic track and field meet, held here Saturday afternoon under the auspices of Winona State Teachers' college. The local team chalked up 77 points. Austin was second with 35, while Cotter high of this city, with one man entry, led Calcedonia for third with 15 points.

It takes about an hour for a tree to change its color while a chameleon changes color almost instantly.

IN THE SPORT MIRROR

BY "BANGS"

Arrangements have been made whereby the management of both the La Crosse and Nelson clothing company baseball teams may have equal access to the improved baseball park which is at present being put into order at Copeland park at North La Crosse.

Pending a resolution drawn at a meeting of the park commission together with representatives of the two baseball clubs giving to both clubs the opportunity of scheduling equal numbers of games on the home field during the season, operations in the construction of the new stands and general repair of the field were temporarily upheld.

That equal rights to the park might be shared by the clubs it became necessary for the Nelson clothing company management to cancel several playing dates on the home field and through the present schedule of both aggregations baseball fans in the city of La Crosse will have the opportunity of witnessing a game on the home field every Sunday up to and including July 31. The run begins today.

The two holidays which appear on the calendar during that time have been divided equally, the Nelson team occupying Copeland park on Memorial Day, while the La Crosse club plays on the home diamond on the Fourth of July.

Co-operation in every department of the two organizations has been the result of the arrangements existing at the present time between the baseball clubs. It is believed that the revival and interest shown in baseball in La Crosse during the year to date is the beginning of a big thing for the city, and continuing with equal earnestness in the immediate future will create a demand for even a larger scope in the realms of baseball for the La Crosse club has pledged funds for the purpose of the Nelson clothing company in the matter of raising funds for the purpose of defraying the expenses incurred in the construction of the bleachers. In general, an attitude of co-operation has been accepted by the management to mean more to baseball for a community than would an atmosphere of hatred and jealousy.

Jack Johnson, former heavyweight champion, is preparing to pick up and change his residence after a year's stay as Uncle Sam's guest at Leavenworth penitentiary. His term will be up on July 7.

Although there is but a seemingly short time remaining for the ex-champ to serve, it is too long a time for Jack in view of the big title scrap which comes off at Jersey City July 2. According to newspaper articles, Jack appears to be in mighty good condition and no one would suspect that he was being treated cruelly. There is no prison pallor on his face and he admits he is well fed.

But—the judge who officiated at the "year and a day" ceremony for Johnson saw fit to do it on a date that would bring the finish of the sentence on July 7. Five days, but it might as well be five years as far as Jack and his prospects of seeing the big fight are concerned. The colored pugilist has stated that he would like to flop down in the middle of Tex Rickard's auditorium on July 2 and watch him lick the Frenchman.

NANCY LEE WINS KENTUCKY OAKS AT CHURCHILL DOWNS

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—P. A. Clark's filly, Nancy Lee, won the fixture, the Kentucky Oaks, for three-year-old fillies, at a mile and an eighth, at Churchill Downs Saturday in 1:50 2-5 and clipped four-fifths of a second from the track record of 1:51 1-5 established May 27, 1916.

The Oaks is the oldest stake fixture for three-year-old fillies to be run continuously on the North American continent.

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—Yale defeated Harvard 62 1-3 to 54 2-3 in a dual track meet here Saturday.

WISCONSIN WINS FROM MINNESOTA IN TRACK MEET

MADISON, Wis.—Wisconsin ran away from Minnesota in practically all the events of their dual track meet here this afternoon, capturing the events with a total score of 104 to the 31 that the Gophers were able to register. The Badgers took first place in everything but the 220 yard dash and the high hurdles.

Sundt was the individual point winner of the day, taking three firsts for Wisconsin in the broad jump and the shot put. He broke his own Wisconsin record by throwing the javelin 160 feet six inches. Time in the track events was slow because of cold weather.

JOSH WISE ON THE FIGHT

BY JACK RAIFER

A word from Josh Wise: If Jack Dempsey wants to do some real road work, I'll furnish the shovel.

Every prize fighter should know how to write his name, as it is one of the most important parts of the business. First he must sign articles for a fight and then he must sign articles for the newspapers.

At the rate of speed at which Dempsey writes it would take him 84 years, 11 months and 23 days to write all the articles he signs.

Atlantic City may be all right as a training place for Dempsey, but it would be a poor one for Jess Willard. It would take three men to push his chair up and down the boardwalk.

If Carpenter has said everything for which he has been quoted, his wind is all right.

Everybody will know in time whether or not Dempsey can lick Carpenter. In the meantime we should like to know if he can pronounce his name.

Dempsey received a number of United States senators and representatives at his quarters last Sunday. We don't know why Jack still draws the color line.

You have to hand it to a prize-fighter—with both hands.

Prizefighting financing keeps growing larger and larger. One of these days they'll be calling on Wall street to float a bond issue for the purse.

Dempsey has a private secretary. The members of his cabinet will be announced next week.

Carpentier is bringing over a French cook. Hoover said it: "Food will win the war."

Somebody wants to know what becomes of all the prizefighters. Humph! What becomes of all the bartenders?
